Please read this document carefully. It forms part of the legal terms governing use of Music Vote Live (MVL).

1. What This Policy Covers

This policy explains how MVL may use cookies and similar technologies that store information on, or access information from, a user's device. It should be read with the Privacy Policy.

2. What These Technologies Do

Cookies and similar technologies can support login sessions, security, preferences, service functionality, performance measurement and analytics. Some technologies may be provided by third parties integrated into the service.

3. Strictly Necessary Technologies

MVL may use technologies that are strictly necessary to provide a service requested by the user, transmit communications, secure accounts, maintain sessions, balance service load or perform other functions that fall within an applicable legal exception. Where consent is not legally required, MVL should still provide appropriate information about their use.

4. Non-Essential Technologies

Where consent is required by law, MVL will seek a freely given, specific, informed and unambiguous choice before using non-essential analytics, advertising, social-media or similar technologies. Merely continuing to browse should not be treated as consent where an affirmative choice is required.

5. Your Choices

The website should provide a cookie/storage-access preference control that allows users to accept or reject relevant non-essential categories and later change or withdraw their choice. Withdrawing consent does not make earlier lawful use unlawful. Browser controls may also allow users to block or delete technologies, but doing so can affect site functions.

6. Cookie List and Durations

Because the final production website and its suppliers determine the exact technologies in use, MVL must maintain an up-to-date cookie/storage-access list in its consent tool or on the website showing, where applicable, the technology/provider, purpose, category and duration. This operational list forms part of this Cookie Policy.

7. Third Parties

Third-party services embedded in MVL may set or access technologies where permitted. MVL should configure those integrations consistently with the user's consent choices and applicable law. Third parties may also provide their own privacy information.

8. Changes and Contact

MVL may update this policy when technologies, suppliers or legal requirements change. Questions may be sent to info@musicvotelive.com.
